

DR. T. J. BARKLEY HONORED

CHURCH CONSISTORY WRITE BELOVED PASTOR A LETTER.

Dr. Barkley Delivered Farewell Sermon to His People Last Sunday.

Dr. T. J. Barkley while severing his relation as pastor of Trinity Reformed Church has been honored by the Consistory of the church by being asked to become Pastor Emeritus of the congregation and the beloved pastor will continue his connection with the church in this new relation. The letter of the Consistory to Dr. Barkley is as follows:

To Our Pastor, Dr. Barkley:

Being sensible of a debt we owe to you far greater than we can pay in worldly goods or interests, and believing that an expression of our gratitude and of our love and esteem for you would convey to you a knowledge of our appreciation of that indebtedness, we, the Consistory of Trinity Reformed Church, representing as we do, each and every member of our congregation, address to you this communication.

Your resignation has not altered our relations with you, save with regard to your active ministerial duties. Between you and many of us the pastoral relation, with its sympathies, obligations and affection, will never be wholly dissolved; the ties which have existed for more than thirty years will be broken only by the Final Messenger. Many of us were baptized and confirmed by you, and we have, during our entire lives within the Church, looked up to you as our pastor and spiritual counselor.

You have ministered to us faithfully and unselfishly through these many years of your service to the Master, and, in the future, should we come to you for advice, sympathy or encouragement, we know that we would be as welcome as in the past.

We, the governing body of our congregation, accepted your resignation to the end that you might be relieved of certain duties which you felt you could no longer perform in justice to yourself; we did not look upon that action as the culmination of your service to the Church or to us or as the termination of our dependence upon or loyalty to you.

We, therefore, ask you to continue in your life's work—a work so worthy and which you have so well done—to be Pastor Emeritus of our congregation, with such responsibilities as you may desire to assume; this office to be taken by you on the 1st day of December, 1915, at which time your resignation as our stated pastor will become effective.

The letter is signed by the members of the Consistory: H. W. Lightner, H. T. Weaver, Thos. J. Winebrenner, C. E. Stahle, S. E. Waltman, George W. Rex, C. N. Gitt.

Dr. T. J. Barkley closed his pastoral care of 31 years with a touching farewell sermon on Sunday morning, giving the title of "A Talk Without a Text." Among other things Dr. Barkley said:

"The last week has been a hard week on me for many reasons—not that I have done an extra amount of work—not that I have been called upon to do anything of that sort. First, there was a meeting of Gettysburg classis at which the pastoral relation between me and this Church was dissolved. This freed me from all ecclesiastical obligation to this Church and severed the relation between me and you. Second, for the last time this week, I met with the Consistory of the Church, and transacted business. Third, this is the last Sunday I shall stand before you as your pastor. To think that after thirty years of work among you I shall leave the ministry for good. All this has worried me. It has disturbed my sleep. I don't know how it feels to a farmer when he has plowed his last furrow. I don't know how it feels to a lawyer when he has prepared his last brief, nor do I know how the merchant may feel when he lays down his yardstick for good, but I do know these things have had a peculiar effect upon me, when I think that it means the severance of relations with you all."

"There have been many things to occur in those thirty years. It seems a long time and it takes a big slice out of a life. As I look over the congregation, I miss many, many faces that were present when I assumed charge thirty years ago. Some have died, others have moved from the town and a few have left the congregation. All this has affected me so that I can scarcely describe my feelings."

"There is another side to it of course, that gives me pleasure. All the labors have a peculiar joy as I realize that they brought you to a higher plane of physical life where you could worship and glorify God, if you had a mind to. I think then of the increase in the congregation since the time I took charge. Thirty years ago the membership was 235 and at the last report of the financial secretary it had reached more than 400. I think of the number of children that have been baptized to the Christian faith. I think of the number of accessions to the church. I think of the number of young folks who have removed from the town. Do you realize that there were enough to form two or three good sized congregations? All these recollections give me great joy. Then there is another list, to which I do not like to refer. It has been wound up finally and sealed and everything about it concluded in the Evergreen Cemetery. It brings me much grief when I think of this long list, and I am slow in referring to it.

"There has been a large number of marriages, just how many I do not know and in all these thirty years I labored among you, there have been changes brought about in the church, improvements, organizations of new societies and steps taken toward the betterment of its conditions."

"My relation with you has been a tender one, indeed. I have tried to father you. I have been among the sick and the dying and I have been with you when you were in the midst of joys. In truth, while I have been one of you I have carried you along in my heart. I feel that when I close my pastorate I am severing a sort of paternal relation, but I think I am doing it for the best, and hoping always for your welfare. I have served you all these years and have done it cheerfully. I now lay down the staff, to be taken up by another. Do not become discouraged if he does not do things in the same order as I have done them, do not censure him if he has other methods. I trust you will take him into your hearts and treat him well."

"You have helped me as I have helped you and now I lay down the Shepherd's staff as I feel it is the right thing to do, hoping that you will flourish and become stronger and stronger. That is my wish and with that I bid you fond adieu."

THANKSGIVING WEDDINGS.

Klunk—Keefer.—A very pretty wedding took place early Thanksgiving morning in St. Mary's Church, McSherrystown, when Miss Camille Keefer, became the bride of Raymond Klunk. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass at 5:30 o'clock, by the Rev. L. Augustus Reutter. The attendants were Miss Annie Keefer, sister of the bride, and Harry Klunk, brother of the groom. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Keefer of McSherrystown, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Klunk of Hanover and is employed as electrician. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Klunk left on a wedding tour to Philadelphia and New York.

Little—Altland.—Curtis, E. Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Little of Salisbury, Md., formerly of McSherrystown, and Miss Laura S. Altland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Altland of Hanover, were married Monday evening in the rectory of St. Mary's Church, McSherrystown, by Rev. L. Aug. Reutter. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. James Small of Hanover, with whom they will make their home. The groom is employed in the barber shop of Clarence G. Smith, McSherrystown.

Ziegler—Bartell.—Charles Ziegler of York, a former student at State College, and Miss Mamie Bartell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bartell of York, were married by the Rev. Dr. W. Emerson Karns. The ceremony took place on the Ness farm, close to York Haven, in the presence of a large party of Mr. Ziegler's classmates. Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held. The bride is a niece of Mrs. Harry Holzworth and Mrs. Ida Trexell of this place.

Frey—Carson.—Charles Frey of Fountaindale, and Miss Florence Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carson of Rouzerville, were married on Nov. 11, at the home of Mr. Frey's cousin, Miss Edith Boone, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Frey is a school teacher by profession, having taught for many years in the Fountaindale schools.

Hartman—Bowman.—Miss Esther Bowman of Mt. Joy, Lancaster county, and George N. Hartman of Philadelphia, were quietly married Nov. 25 at the Hoffman Orphanage near Littlestown by Mr. Hartman's father, Rev. J. Stewart Hartman. They will reside in Philadelphia where Mr. Hartman is secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association.

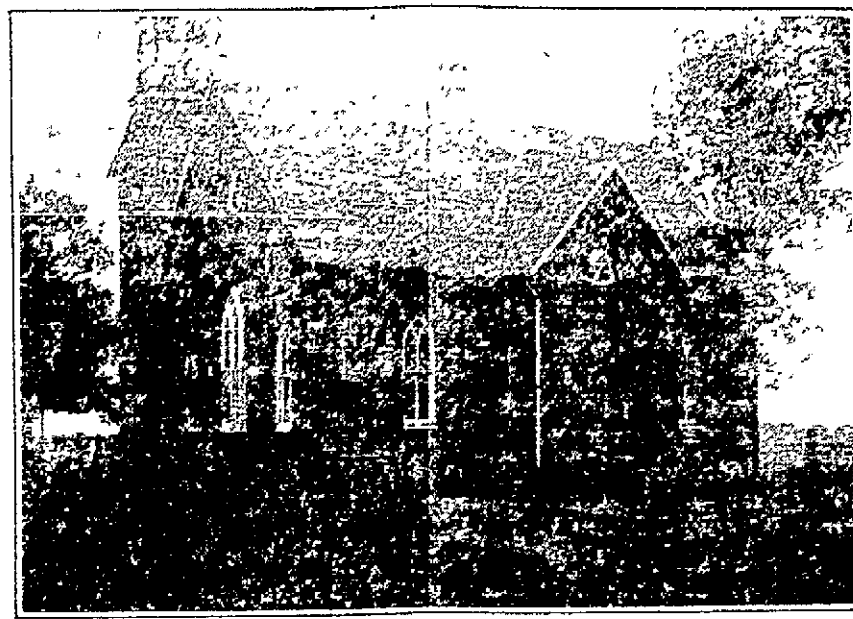

Border—Jacobs.—David E. Border and Miss Sarah C. Jacobs, both of East Berlin, were married Thanksgiving Day by the Rev. Dr. O. P. Scheilhammer, at his residence in York. After the ceremony the couple left for an extended wedding trip through the western part of the State.

Miller—O'Brien.—Miss Sue O'Brien and Ernest Miller of Hilltown, were married in St. Ignace's Church, Buchanan Valley, last Thursday morning by Rev. P. F. Sullivan. They are spending their honeymoon at Nagawana Falls.

Strausbaugh—Staub.—Miss Eva Staub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Staub of Berlin Junction, and Earl Strausbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Strausbaugh, of New Oxford, were quietly married by Rev. Mark Stock in the Immaculate Conception parsonage.

Gladhill—Study.—On Nov. 18, 1915, at Littlestown, Roy Gladhill and Miss Mary A. Study, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Study of Guldens, Pa., were united in marriage.

Feezer—Harner.—On Thanksgiving evening, Nov. 25th, 1915, at the U. B. parsonage, Taneytown, by Rev. W. J. Marks, Mervin W. Feezer of near

Mt. Joy Church.

Mt. Joy Church Anniversary.

The Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the dedication of Mt. Joy Lutheran Church was observed with appropriate services on last Sunday. The present church edifice was dedicated on November 30, 1890. The old church was destroyed by fire March 4, 1890, and when the new church was ready for dedication Rev. E. J. Wolf and Rev. H. L. Bauginger made the addresses.

The congregation was organized in 1851 and in the following year the first edifice was erected, a brick structure 40 x 50 feet and at the first communion 80 members were present. The church was a part of the Taneytown charge at that time. In 1878 the congregation became a separate charge and in 1882 the parsonage was built. From time to time improvements and additions have been added to the church property until to-day it is one of the most complete country church properties in the county.

The church has had nine pastors in the 64 years of its existence. Rev. S. Senzman 1851 to 1858, Rev. L. T. Williams 1858 to 1867, Rev. P. Bergstresser 1867 to 1874, Rev. W. H. Luckenbaugh 1875 to 1877, Rev. M. L. Beard 1877 to 1881, Rev. J. N. Asper 1881 to 1887, Rev. H. M. Heilman 1887 to 1893, Rev. W. G. Minnich 1893 to 1908, and Rev. E. Stockslager since 1908.

At the anniversary services on Sunday the church was filled at both the morning and evening services. At the former Dr. J. A. Clutz preached the sermon and at the latter Prof. C. F. Sanders.

Taneytown, was united in marriage to Miss Nellie G. Harner of near Littlestown.

Naugle—Galloway.—Among the Pennsylvania couples married at Hagerstown on last Saturday was Foster Naugle of Gettysburg, and Alice Galloway of Fayetteville.

Cashtown Civic League.

The Woman's Civic League of Cashtown held their annual meeting in their attractive rooms in the historical old tavern stand at Cashtown. This League is known all over the State for its splendid work. The meeting was opened in the morning by its president, Miss Emma Swartz, who welcomed the people present. Miss Mary Jones, secretary, read the report of the year, which told of the work done. Mrs. Edwin Tyson of Florida, of the Happy Hour Club, gave a report of their work. Miss Jones gave a recitation, and Mrs. A. Weidner of Arendtsville, gave a talk on "Preparedness and Peace," after which a box luncheon was served at a large table prepared for the occasion. This part of the program was informal and seemed to bring the crowd of women closer together.

At the afternoon session Mrs. Walter K. Sharpe of Chambersburg, chairman of the Central District of the Federation of Women's Clubs, and a woman well known for her great interest in civic work, made a splendid address on what women's clubs stand for; and the civic work the women of the State are doing. Mrs. Wm. Arch. McClean gave a talk on "Mothers' Pensions in Adams county." After singing "America," the annual meeting adjourned.

Loses Arm in Shredder.

When Reynolds Fair of York Springs reached into a fodder shredding machine to remove a crooked stalk he had his left arm so badly mangled on Wednesday afternoon of last week that it had to be amputated about two inches above the elbow at the Harrisburg Hospital, where he was taken following the accident.

Fair was employed on a threshing rig of George Bushy and was working at the farm of Harry Brough in Laitmore township. The men had just started their work after dinner when Fair met with his misfortune. As the fodder is put into the machine it is carried by the rolls into the knives that cut it. A crooked piece of a stock became fastened between the rolls, so that it made it impossible to continue operations until it was removed.

As Fair reached in to get it his arm was caught and pulled into the knives. It was drawn into the blades as far as the elbow and that portion was horribly mangled. Other workmen saw his predicament and stopped the machine. Dr. C. L. Myers was summoned and upon examination found that amputation of a part of the arm would be necessary.

The injured man was rushed to the Harrisburg Hospital by automobile and an operation performed, the mangled arm being cut off two inches above the elbow. Fair stood the ordeal very well.

Will Reside in Gettysburg.

Miss Sarah Stahle, Compiler correspondent from Buchanan Valley, has moved to Gettysburg where she will make her future home. The Chambersburg "Valley Spirit" in a recent issue published the following complimentary notice:

"Miss Sarah Stahle, of Buchanan Valley, had a sale at the old post office and store building preparatory to her removal to Gettysburg. Miss Stahle was long the postmistress there and kept a live country store. Miss Stahle has resided in the house she is vacating for thirty-five attendance and an interested attendance by town and country people. It is an opportunity for our people not only to assure the success of the show but also to demonstrate whether this exhibition should be made an annual one. If the people show they want it, there is no doubt of its becoming permanent. Think of a first class poultry, apple and agricultural show of five days for a season ticket of 35 cents. Every member of interested families and every one desiring to promote the welfare of the community should give their support with season tickets.

Auto Hits Train.

John L. Gibbs, postmaster at York Springs, was badly cut about the head, when thrown through the wind shield of an automobile in which he was riding last Wednesday night, as the machine struck a P. R. R. wreck train at a crossing in York. Three other men were in the machine with him but escaped uninjured. The party were all attached at the York Springs postoffice and were returning from the York and Adams Carriers' Association banquet in that city. The machine was driven by Edward Brame and Mr. Gibbs was occupying the front seat with him. In the rear seat were P. S. Pentz and Emmanuel Brame. They left York about 1 o'clock and as they approached the Carlisle avenue crossing, Mr. Brame failed to notice the train until he was almost upon it, and too late to prevent the collision. The machine struck the steam chest of the locomotive. Mr. Gibbs was hurled into the windshield, receiving cuts on his forehead, behind his right ear, and on his chin.

Farmers' Institutes in Adams County.

Following the custom for the past several years in Adams county, farmers' institutes will be held during the week of December 13 in three county towns, Arendtsville, Fairfield and New Oxford. The meetings will be held in each of the three towns two days, at Arendtsville December 13 and 14; at Fairfield, December 15 and 16, and at New Oxford, December 17 and 18. Able and experienced speakers will be present at these sessions and will deliver lectures on all topics that will interest the farmer especially. Some of the instructors are Sheldon W. Funt, E. L. Phillips, Charles G. McLain and Paul I. Wringley.

Friend of Gettysburg Gone.

Colonel William Brooke Rawle, prominent lawyer of Philadelphia, historian and Civil War Veteran, died on Tuesday in his 72nd year. Col. Rawle was a son of the distinguished lawyer, Charles W. Brooke, but shortly before his own admission to the Bar assumed the maiden name of his mother, Miss Elizabeth T. Rawle. He fought in the battle of Gettysburg and about the same time was given his degree at the University of Pennsylvania. Later he was made a lieutenant colonel. After the war he studied law. He was agent many years for the Penn estates in this county, and a vice president of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania of which his grandfather was one of the founders. He was the author of several books touching on the Battle of Gettysburg and the subsequent campaigns, and was a frequent visitor to this place and knew an attachment for the battlefield that brought him here again and again. He was a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, other prominent orders, and historical societies and clubs. He married Miss Elizabeth Norris Pepper, who survives him.

Xmas Savings Fund.

December 15 the Christmas Savings Funds of the Citizens' Trust Co. and Gettysburg National Bank will be paid to the 2200 persons entitled to the same. The former will pay $25,000 to 1600 members, and the latter $15,000 to 6000 members. The Xmas fund has grown from year to year and has been an important element in the Christmas cheer for this community. The funds are put aside for spending and the business of the town feel the help that comes from the spending of the greater part of this $40,000 of savings in this place. The banks will start their 1916 clubs about December 20 and many of our people who have been holding membership cards have given notice of their intention to take out new cards for 1916.

Duty of Board of Health.

On Wednesday Judge Swope heard the habeas corpus case of Guy W. Mickley. The home of Mr. Mickley was quarantined on account of a diphtheria case. Mr. Mickley requested permit of health officer to enter and leave the premises under proper regulations. The health officer would not grant what was asked, saying it was for attending physician to grant a certificate and the latter said it was the business of the health officer under the Board of Health. Judge Swope ruled that the duty of ascertaining conditions of isolation are observed so that permits to enter and leave the premises was the duty of the Board of Health in issuing the certificates and not of the attending physician.

During an attack of vertigo, which followed the taking of several pills, Lawrence Eckert, of Table Rock, fell heavily to the street in Gettysburg, Monday evening, and cut a gash in his nose that required two stitches to close.

New Law for Justice of the Peace.

Under the Act of the Legislature passed at the session of 1915 all persons elected at the election on November 2nd to serve as justices of the peace must file an acceptance of the office and their intention to lift their commission with the prothonotary within thirty days after the election. Failure to do so will disqualify them from getting a commission.

Heretofore it was the duty of the prothonotary to certify to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, immediately after the election, the names of all persons elected justices of the peace within the county. Commissioners for the same were then made out at the State Department and forwarded to the prothonotary. Ordinarily about one-fourth of the commissions were never lifted and the new law was passed to avoid the work of making out commissions that were not wanted.

Under the new law the prothonotary waits until the expiration of thirty days or until Dec. 2nd this year, and then certifies to the Secretary of the Commonwealth the names of the men who have filed acceptances and intend to lift their commissions, and any who have been elected and fail to file an acceptance their office will be designated as vacant and it will be up to the Governor to appoint a man to fill the vacancy.

Orchard Demonstrations.

The Orchard Demonstrations, given by the Bureau of Zoology of the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, will commence on Monday, November 29th, in several different counties of Pennsylvania, and will continue during the month of December. State Zoologist Surface has so arranged the schedule that in every county there will be given practical demonstrations of methods of pruning and spraying trees, and other features of modern horticulture, by men particularly skilled and trained for this work. An important feature of the service is that for these demonstrations a temporary change has been made in the assignment of the demonstrating force, and at no meeting will the specialist in charge be the same person as the one who has previously given demonstrations there. Thus the public will have an opportunity to see and hear new men, and to see variations of methods, and hear addresses on horticultural topics that are up-to-date.

The meetings are scheduled to begin at one o'clock on the afternoon of the respective date mentioned, and the demonstrator will be present regardless of weather. State Zoologist Surface is planning to attend as many of these meetings as possible, and Secretary of Agriculture Patton will also be present at some of them. All persons interested are invited to attend, bring specimens for identification, ask questions and receive the benefit of this modern practical instruction which the State has to offer.

The schedule that has been prepared provides for this county as follows:

E. C. Bowers, demonstrator. Saturday, Dec. 4th, Daniel Clarence Jacobs, Gettysburg, R. No. 5.

LICENSE NOTICE

In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Adams County:

It is ordered that all applications for licenses for the sale of vinous, spirituous, malt or brewed liquors, wholesale or retail, for the year 1916 will be heard on Friday the 14th day of January, 1916, at 10.30 a. m. at which time all persons applying or making objections to applications, will be heard by evidence, petition, remonstrance, or counsel. There must be no communication at any time with the judges personally upon the subject, by letter or any other way.

The petition verified by affidavit of applicant, shall be in conformity with the requirements of the Act of Assembly. Judgment bond shall be executed in the penal sum of $2000, with no less than two reputable freeholders of the county where the liquors are to be sold, as sureties, each of them to be a bona fide owner of real estate in the said county, worth over and above all encumbrances, the sum of $2000, or other legal security to be given.

Bond conditioned for the faithful observance of all the laws relating to the selling or furnishing of liquors, and to pay all damages which shall be recovered against the license, and all costs, fines and penalties, which may be imposed on him under any indictment for violating said laws; and the sureties may be required to appear in Court and justify upon oath. The Court shall in all cases refuse the application whenever, in the opinion of the Court, having due regard to the number and character of the petitioners for and against such applications, such license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and entertainment of strangers and travelers, or that the applicant is not a fit person to whom such license should be granted.

Petitions to be filed with the Clerk of the Courts not later than Saturday the 18th day of December, 1915. Objections and remonstrances to be filed not later than Tuesday, 4th day of January, 1916. Upon sufficient cause being shown or proof being made to the Court that the party holding a license has violated any law of the Commonwealth relating to the sale of liquors, the Court shall, upon notice being given to the person licensed, revoke the license.

By the Court.
S. McC. SVOPE,
Pres. Judge.

Water and Kerosene

YOU'RE mighty careful about the water you drink—and so you should be. You want to know where it comes from and the probability of its purity. If you have any doubt whatever of its purity, you will not drink it, because you realize the danger of it being infected with bacteria. That's showing your good common sense.

Suppose you apply this same common sense when buying kerosene. What's the sense of paying for a poor quality kerosene when you can buy the best and pay no more for it?

The next time you buy kerosene ask your grocer for

ATLANTIC Rayolight OIL

Insist on that kind because you get the most for your money. You're buying kerosene that burns longer and brighter, and gives out the greatest heat. Because it is pure and high grade it will not char the wick nor cause soot and smoke. It does not create unpleasant odors when burning.

Our scientific process of refining has eliminated all these objectionable features found in low-grade, common kerosene.

Insist on having Rayolight Oil just the same as you would insist on having pure water.

Atlantic Rayolight Oil is a Sewing Machine Tonic. It just puts new life into the machine. Drop into all the oil receptacles, let it remain for twelve hours, then run the machine, without threading, for five minutes, wipe clean and oil in the usual way. New on you? Well, perhaps you've got a use that's new to us; if you have, in a short while, if you read these advertisements, you'll see something of interest.

Echo of Sound.

An echo is a sound reflected from a distant surface. Sound is produced by waves or pulses of the air, and when these waves come in contact with a cliff or wall or other opposing surface they are reflected like light or heat, and the returning waves cause a repetition of the sound. The word echo is of Greek origin. According to ancient mythology, it was the name of a mountain nymph, daughter of the air and the earth. Echo was one of Juno's attendants, but her loquacity displeased Jupiter, so she was deprived of the power of speech by Juno and permitted to answer only when she was spoken to. Afterward Echo fell in love with a beautiful youth named Narcissus and was changed into a stone, which still retained the power of voice. Milton personifies her thus:

Sweet Echo, sweetest nymph, that liv'st unseen
Within thy airy shell,
By slow Meander's margin green,
Canst thou not tell me of a gentle pair
That liest thy Narcissus here?
—Philadelphia Press.

Unearned Gratitude.

A sample of the late Dr. William Everett's caustic repartee: "I always experience a sense of deep obligation to you whenever I meet you or hear of you," said George Babbitt to Dr. Everett one morning when they found themselves pacing the deck of an ocean steamer together.

"Why so?" piped the doctor. "Because," said Mr. Babbitt, "I recall that I was once so fortunate as to win the Boylston prize for oratory at Harvard, and you were chairman of the board of judges."

"I remember it perfectly well," rejoined the brusque doctor. "The judges were five in number. At the conclusion of the speaking we retired to consider the merits of the contestants. It was moved that you be awarded a first prize. On that motion the vote was 3 to 2 in your favor. I was one of the two."—Boston Transcript.

Geographical Forenames.

The name "Dardanelles," which one girl baby bears, is more musical than some geographical names with which children are burdened. Mrs. Andrew Lang tells of a family where the babies were named after the places where the father happened to be when he heard of their births. He being a courier, there were a St. Petersburg and a Naples. Kartocat and Skagerrak were the twins, while the only daughter was named Vienna.

Another curious geographical name is recorded in the "Souvenirs du Chevalier de Cussy." In 1829, when attached to the French embassy at Berlin, he met a Countess Bernstorff, who had been christened America because she was born there during the war of independence, her father at that time being in command of a Hessian regiment.—Pall Mall Gazette.

AS TO PACKING OF POULTRY

SUGGESTION OF HOW TO GET MOST MONEY FOR POULTRY.

By Following Directions to Give it the Most Value on the Market.

Poultry packers are urged by the specialists of the department to give unusual attention to preparing and packing their birds for shipment, particularly in the mild weather, which has been widely prevalent this autumn, continues. The poultry specialists say that the weather conditions in many sections have been very similar to those which prevailed in the autumn of 1913 and which, as poultry shippers will remember, proved disastrous to all packers who did not dress, chill, and pack properly.

The specialists, therefore, recommend the particular observance of the following methods of handling dressed poultry, which are essential to a perfect product at any time and are of vital importance whenever weather conditions are unfavorable:

1. Keep the holding batteries for your incoming stock clean, well aired, and free from vermin, and see that the chickens have plenty of fresh water and plenty to eat.
2. Don't kill a chicken when the crop is full of feed. Give the chicken only water for 24 hours before it is killed. Food in the crop or in the intestines of a dressed chicken causes loss of flavor and hastens decay, which more than offsets any gain from extra weight.

3. Good bleeding is absolutely essential to a good appearance on the market and retards decay. Circular 61, Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture, explains the best methods of bleeding and loosening the feather muscles for dry picking.
4. Hang the chicken by both feet while picking. Hanging by one leg spoils the shape of the bird. Picking on the lap gets the skin dirty and hastens decay.

5. Dry pick if possible. Scalding is particularly undesirable because it hastens decay.
6. Chill every dressed bird until the body temperature is below 39° F. Never pack or ship an imperfectly chilled bird. More decay is due to imperfect chilling than to any other single factor in dressing. Dry chill, if possible. Chickens cooled in water lose flavor, decay sooner, will not cold-store as satisfactorily as dry-chilled, and are in every way more undesirable on the market. Refrigerator cars will carry well-chilled goods in good condition, but they can not chill warm goods to a sufficiently low temperature.

7. Pack in boxes or small kegs whenever possible. A large barrel makes an undesirable package, because where poultry is packed in large masses the weight of the upper layers crushes the birds at the bottom.

8. Line all packages with parchment paper and cover the top of the poultry before the lid is put on.
9. Wrap every head in suitable paper so that blood from one bird will not mar the appearance of another.

10. Use only good refrigerator cars and see that they are in good order. Ice and salt the car 24 hours before loading. The car, at the end of 24 hours, should show a temperature below 40° F. at a point 4 feet above the floor and between the doors.

Never handle chickens roughly, either before or after killing. Rough handling causes bruises, broken bones, scarred skins, and soft places in the flesh. Undue haste on the part of the killers and pickers results in lowered keeping quality and poor appearance of the product.

Piecework, which leads to quantity rather than quality, makes for lower prices on the market. Those who pay by the piece should remember that they sell by the quality of the piece.

These directions will apply with equal force to turkeys intended for the holiday market.

Shipment of Game.

Under the provisions of Section 3 of the Act of April 21st, 1915, it is made unlawful to send game of any kind through Parcel Post from one point to another point in this State, under any condition or at any time. The same Act also makes it unlawful for common carriers of any description to carry from one point to another point in this State, either as express, freight, baggage, or otherwise, game killed in this State, unless same is accompanied by the owner thereof and properly marked, or for common carriers to carry game of any kind to any point out of the State, unless same has attached thereto a tag bearing the name of the owner who is possessed of a non-resident Hunter's License, together with the number of the license and his address, who is traveling with such game upon the same train, such person being authorized by law to carry out of the state with him such game as he legally killed in one day.

Prior to the passage of the Act of April 21st, 1915, an Act was passed in this State to encourage the raising of game in captivity, and giving to individuals who might take advantage of such provision the right to sell, under certain regulations, the game they might raise in a licensed preserve. Section 4 of the Act of April 21st, 1915, enlarges the rights of individuals operating a Licensed Preserve, and provides that elk, and deer, and Belgian or German hare, and other game, raised strictly in captivity and shipped from such place of captivity without being first released in the Commonwealth at large, may be killed and sold within the commonwealth at any time, without regard to sex or numbers, etc. To sell the game raised in captivity undoubtedly necessitates its shipment, and the Board of Game Commissioners has taken the position that where two declarations in the law, especially in the same Act, are apparently contradictory, it is for us to construe these provisions in a manner as nearly consistent with justice and reason and existing law as may be possible, and we have concluded that the provision of the recent Act forbidding the shipment of game was intended to apply to game killed in a wild state in this Commonwealth, game the shipment of which the Commonwealth had heretofore never attempted to control, and was not intended to apply to game killed in licensed preserves, the shipment of which was already regulated through a system of tags and markings and reports to the Game Commission in a manner intended to prevent game killed in a licensed preserve from being mistaken for game killed in a wild state.

Officers of the Game Commission are directed to in no way interfere with game in course of shipment within the State, either by common carrier or otherwise, such game having attached thereto the Propagating License Tag or marker issued, bearing the name of the person owning the Preserve, and the number of the license issued to him.

Sterilization of Dental Instruments.

The possibility of the transmission of disease through the medium of dental instruments has probably been considered by every occupant of the dentist's chair. It constitutes one of the fears with which a patient is possessed the moment he adjusts himself for his period of treatment. Authoritative instances of the conveyance of contagion in this manner are extremely rare, its frequency not being determinable, although few will deny the possibilities of occurrences of this character.

The list of organisms which may contaminate dental instruments is formidable, but this does not mean that the diseases of which they are the causative factors necessarily ensue if they are accidentally carried into the mouth. Their presence upon dental instruments is, however, an indication of what the surgeons call poor technique. In surgery poor technique is usually attended with disastrous results, but in dentistry errors of this character may produce no ill effects. In spite of this relative freedom from danger, dentists are determined that their methods shall equal the highest standards.

Cleanliness should be the primary consideration in all dental operations. The white coat of the operator represents more than comfort; it is the symbol of neatness. The dentist who works with unclean instruments, who provides soiled linen, or who places a common drinking glass before his patient, should be judged accordingly. Fortunately the members of the profession who do these things are criticized and suffer from loss of patronage, so that there is a strong tendency on the part of dentists to maintain their surroundings above reproach. With the sterilization of instruments some carelessness may manifest itself, partly owing to the fact that many instruments are injured by such processes, are too complicated to be treated in this manner, or that the public is not competent to detect errors of technique. However, the public is rapidly learning the value of aseptic methods and the proper equipment is now found in nearly all dental offices.

Thorough studies of the sterilization process have recently been made for dentists by the United States Public Health Service, at the request of various dental associations throughout the country, and in a recent publication of that Service detailed information will be found as to the accepted methods for the sterilization of all dental instruments.—Health News by U. S. Public Health Service.

Indolence.

It has been said that the crime which Nature never forgives is indolence. It is certain that our bodies were never planned for idleness. Good health is invariably the result of a continued and rational exercising of both our bodies and minds.

Whenever we fail to exercise them for a period of time they are apt to degenerate. Not infrequently, owing to the close association of the various parts of the complex human machinery, this results in the impairment of one part and reflects upon the others.

The complications of modern life are very apt to result in our being forced into a restricted sphere and it requires thought and intelligence to keep mind and body in good condition.

The normal man and woman is endowed with a brain capable of development along various lines. To promote this development along a single line creates a one-sidedness which may readily become abnormal.

There has never been a time when opportunities were so great for those who desire to broaden their horizon and cultivate interests aside from those forced upon them by their particular trade or occupation. Not to have interests and occupation in a world teeming with opportunities and possibilities is to admit of stupidity and sloth.

who have been relieved of the necessity of labor and in lieu of better occupation prevent degeneration of mind and body. To be occupied with trifles is better than not to be occupied at all. To devote one's self to tasks which require concentration and a combined effort of mind and body stimulates a rational development and goes far toward keeping us sane and healthy. —Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D. Commissioner of Health.

CROSS AND NERVOUS.

Gettysburg Sufferers from Kidney

Trouble Often Becomes Very Irritable.

Cross irritable people—the sort who fuss and mope and worry over trifles are not always to blame for the annoyance they give to others. Frequently these traits are but the effects of kidney poisons on the brain and nerves. Uric acid that escapes the kidneys, irritates nerve centers and vital organs—is likely to cause backache, rheumatic and neuralgic pains, keep you languid, all tired out, or lead to Bright's disease, gravel or dropsy. Stop the trouble in the beginning. Doan's Kidney Pills are recommended by your friends and neighbors in Gettysburg.

Mrs. N. L. Wierman, 135 York St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I suffered a great deal from backache and I often had nervous spells. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a supply at the People's Drug Store and commenced their use. The backache was benefited. I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and advise other kidney sufferers to give them a trial."

Dumas an Enigma.

The elder Dumas was the greatest enigma in the literary world of Paris, for who has ever been able to explain just how and when all the books that bear his name were written? He loved the mysteries for its own sake. He told me how he and Gabriel in magnetism and mesmeric experiments. He spoke with absolute conviction of the power of magnetism and declared that the whole of life and society was to his way of thinking, nothing but a manifestation of magnetic force.

His talk was like the man himself, calm, nonchalant, without a trace of emotion. He was so far above discussion as to ignore it. When he was speaking he seemed to imply by his look and manner that it made no difference to him whether you believed what he was saying or not.—Francis Grierson in Century Magazine.

Simply Separated.

The janitor of a hall in a country place was asked by an entertainer from the city if there wasn't a piano that he could use for the evening's entertainment.

"Waal, yes, there is a piano down in the cellar," said the janitor, "but you couldn't play on it—leastways, not as it is, for it's full of books."

Then the janitor bawled to his wife: "Susan, where's the works of that piano?"

And Susan's voice floated down from upstairs: "Ain't they out in the garden?"—Washington Star.

Yes, the crowning typewriter triumph is here

It is just out—and comes years before experts expected it. For makers have striven a lifetime to attain this ideal machine. And Oliver has won again, as we scored when we gave the world its first visible writing.

There is truly no other typewriter on earth like this new Oliver "9." Think of touch so light that the tread of a kitten will run the keys!

CAUTION!

The new-day advances that come alone on this machine are all controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models—famous in their day—never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of 54 letters and characters in the little fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

THIS WRITERS OF ALL OTHER MACHINES CAN IMMEDIATELY RUN THE OLIVER NUMBER "9" WITH MORE SPEED AND GREATER EASE.

17 Cents a Day!

Remember this brand-new Oliver "9" is the greatest value ever given in a typewriter. It has all our previous special inventions—visible writing, automatic spacer, 6 1/2-ounce touch—PLUS THE OPTIONAL DUPLEX SHIFT, SELECTIVE COLOR ATTACHMENT and all these other new-day features.

YET WE HAVE DECIDED TO SELL IT TO EVERYONE "ANYWHERE ON OUR FAMOUS PAYMENT PLAN—17 CENTS A DAY! Now every user can easily afford to have the world's crack visible writer, with the famous PRINTYPE, that writes like print, INCLUDED FREE IF DESIRED.

AN ORCHARD OBSERVATION

ON GRADING, PACKING AND SELLING OF APPLES.

Small Towns Outside Apple Belt Have Been Advantageously Exploited.

Unfortunately, when the demand for apples is good, many growers and packers seem to feel that poor grading is justified, and in such years there is a tendency to lower standards. Attention is called to the fact that no condition can justify anything but an honest pack. For a poor grade and shoddy pack the producer ultimately must pay, although temporarily the packer may receive an advantage. Apples should be sold for just what they are according to the recognized grades. Whether or not the price may be high growers and dealers alike should adhere strictly to that policy.

Under all conditions there are certain fundamental processes that ought to be observed in preparing the crop for market if success is to be assured.

The fruit should be picked and packed in such condition as to insure it against abnormal deterioration. With perishable varieties having a ripening season it is suggested that growers should not attempt to harvest the crop at one picking, but rather should glean the trees for only such fruit as is ready to come off, repeating the process until the crop has been picked in uniform condition. The advantage is that the shipping period may begin earlier and last longer, thereby securing greater time for effecting distribution. Furthermore, if all the fruit is harvested at the same time, it is to be remembered that shipments represent extreme stages of maturity, ranging from ripe to green in the same package, and that frequently toward the end of the season over-ripe condition of a portion of the crop may result from failure to pick first only what is in condition for marketing.

Careful handling from tree to car is necessary to prevent deterioration. It is not difficult to understand why a lot of fruit does not arrive in the market in prime condition if it is picked and piled on the ground in the hot sun, placed in packages in a heated condition, and finally hauled in wagons without covers and springs over rough roads. With proper facilities apples picked on hot days should not be packed until the following day. For this purpose shelter should be provided in order that the fruit may be packed in a cool, dry condition. Growers who have no packing sheds should either build them or arrange to use their barn floors. The wagons should be equipped with springs and cover provided for the protection of the fruit from the weather.

Culls and cider stock should be eliminated from the better grades and as far as possible diverted to cider mills, canneries, and evaporators. While in short-crop years there is a fair demand for low-class apples, still by filling the autumn markets with poor stocks, it is possible to obstruct seriously the disposition of the standard grades, and force into cold storage larger quantities than the conditions may justify. In general, only long-keeping standard-pack apples should be placed in the coolers, though it is frequently profitable to store for relatively short periods such sorts as Grimes, Wealthy and Jonathon, for withdrawal during autumn and early winter as the demand justifies. In packing fruits for storage, special care should be exercised to pick the fruit in sound condition, pack it carefully, and rush it into storage without delay. Such methods add materially to the life of the product.

Owing to geographic location, some important apple-producing States have the natural advantage of an early season. It would be folly for such States not to profit by that advantage. It is possible for growers so situated to leave their crop on the trees until the period of greatest movement, and frequently in years past they have suffered great loss by doing so. The Southern States of the apple belt should begin early and market the greatest portion possible prior to the period of greatest movement, and thereby avoid competition with the producing areas of the northern belt. On the other hand, States that go to market latest should be in no hurry to rush the markets during the period of greatest movement. In brief, the crop should be distributed throughout the longest time possible, cold and dry storages being judiciously utilized for conservation.

Small towns outside the apple belt are often poorly supplied, even in large crop years. Growers of the Middle West have taken advantage of this condition by going to such towns with cars of apples and selling on the track. In order to succeed with this method the shippers should know conditions of supply and demand in the town selected, ascertain the railway and township regulations controlling track sales, and precede delivery of the car by judicious advertising. The mayor can give information as to whether a license is required, and the railway agent as to whether track sales are allowed.

In so far as the apple grower is concerned, co-operation in distribution and marketing is highly commended as an economic system for securing judicious handling. Of course, it would be impracticable for growers to organize upon the eve of crop movement, because disaster would likely result as the consequence of too little time for perfecting business arrangements. However, in communities where co-operative packing and selling agencies are operated, the growers should do all possible to strengthen such exchanges with their patronage and counsel. The disloyalty of members is the chief element of failure in co-operative circles, and apple growers are strongly urged to stand by their associations as the best way to solve the problems that are common to all.

Shop Early.

"Do your Christmas shopping early," is the appeal of Commissioner John Price Jackson, of the Department of Labor and Industry, to merchants throughout Pennsylvania in an effort to effect reasonably early daily closing of all mercantile establishments during the holidays and thus prevent prosecution for violations of the labor laws.

The familiar, "Do your Christmas shopping early," is also directed by the Commissioner at the army of Christmas buyers in the hope of obtaining the co-operation that will make the appeal to the merchants effective.

"Christmas shopping should be done as early as is possible,—early in the day as well as early in the season," said Commissioner Jackson today. "If all merchants in every community combine unitedly for a definite closing hour each night during the holiday season, none will lose trade, the law will be observed and every establishment will have fresher and more efficient clerks to meet the gruelling demands of the holiday rush.

"Girls under 21 years of age may not be employed in stores or factories after 9 o'clock at night or before 6 o'clock in the morning. No female may be employed more than six days a week, more than 54 hours a week, or more than 10 hours a day. When an establishment is closed for a legal holiday, females may be employed, during such week, two hours a day overtime for three days but the working hours for the week must not exceed 54.

"Inspectors of the Department of Labor and Industry in all sections of the State are instructed to pay special attention to the working hours of employees during the holiday season, not for the purpose of instituting many prosecutions but to see that the Laws are obeyed and to relieve the often needlessly long hours of employees."

The circulation of THE PHILADELPHIA SUNDAY RECORD is steadily growing, and deservedly so. This condition has been brought about by the fact that THE RECORD is printing a most complete Sunday newspaper. Always noted for the value of its news columns, which include more worth-while news articles than any other Philadelphia paper, THE SUNDAY RECORD has greatly enlarged its special features.

Its attractive colored Fiction Magazine, containing short and continued stories by the best authors, is well worth the price of the paper alone. Its colored Comic Section is rapidly coming to be recognized as the most interesting and amusing, yet without the objectionable features of many colored comics. Its Comic Section may safely be permitted to enter any home.

THE RECORD'S Sporting Section is the most complete printed, giving more space to a wider range of subjects, such as trap-shooting, bowling, golf, soccer football, horse news, automobile news, and scholastic athletic activities, (besides its usual baseball and football space,) than is usually found in other Sunday papers.

THE RECORD's theatrical news is largely read by amusement lovers, and recently enlarged space was given to its Society News and this branch of its special service placed under the direction of Miss Agnes Repplier, 2nd, who is well known to all Philadelphia and suburban society.

THE RECORD'S "Black & White" Magazine Section is a newspaper of specialties in itself. It contains news of interest to every member of the family; son, daughter, father, and mother. The Father page included in this magazine section is making a big reputation for its variety of ideas and the attractiveness of its designs. There is a page for boys and girls, of stories and puzzles; another of jokes and the inimitable "Willie Green," several pages for mother on domestic science and fashions; the school page, conducted by Grace F. Pennypacker; as well as special pages of intense interest to father.

Altogether, THE SUNDAY RECORD gives the greatest value, at its retail price of 5c, that it is possible to obtain. Your local newsdealer will serve you upon request.

Miss Rose Conrad of McSherrystown in an attempt to hurry along a slow fire in a range, poured coal oil on the fire in the stove and closed the lids. Immediately an explosion took place, knocking the lids from the stove, the pipe from off the stove, and tearing the drum to pieces.

Ancient Gardens.

Statues were a decorative element of which the Florentine garden architect made expensive use. At first a few antique busts were placed along the parapet of the terrace or under the central loggia, but ere long Greek gods and heroes, fauns and naiads were seen at the end of every alley, while giants and caryatides were introduced to support walls and porticoes.

One great charm of renaissance gardens was the skillful manner in which nature and art were blended together. The formal design of the giardino segreto agreed with the straight lines of the house, and the walls, with their clipped hedges, led on to the wider, freer growth of woodland and meadow, while the dense shade of the bosco supplied an effective contrast to the sunny spaces of lawn and flower bed.

The ancient practice of cutting box trees into fantastic shapes, known to the Romans as the topiary art, was largely restored in the fifteenth century and became an essential part of Italian gardens.—New York Telegram.

Curious Telegraph Lines.

The most original telegraph line in the world once extended from La Paz, the capital of Bolivia, to the neighboring town of Oruro, a distance of about 155 miles. There are no growing trees in this part of the world, and wood of any kind is so rare that the telegraph poles were made of the same material as the natives' household furniture—dried mud. The pillars were built on stone foundations and measured about five feet square at the base, with a tapering height of fifteen feet. They were placed about 300 feet apart. Another curious telegraph line was constructed in Uganda by a British engineer, who transported growing trees to the roadside and used them as poles because he could not find any "dead" wood that would withstand the ravages of the white ants. In Dutch East India growing trees are also turned to account in this manner, but there a wire is stretched across the road between the trees on either side and the actual telegraph line suspended down the center.

Fleas as Jumpers.

The jumping powers of fleas have been much exaggerated, according to a bulletin on these insects issued by the department of agriculture. The species known as the human flea (Pulex irritans) is probably the best jumper. According to Mitzmain, the maximum horizontal distance this species can jump is thirteen inches and the maximum vertical distance less than eight inches.

The question of the flea's jumping powers is of importance in connection with the spread of bubonic plague and other diseases of which this insect is the carrier. The Indian plague commission, which has investigated the habits of the Indian rat flea, finds its maximum horizontal jump to be only five inches, while Mitzmain records the maximum height to which it can jump as three and one-eighth inches. One species of flea, the "sticktight," is nearly incapable of jumping.

Limitations of Science.

Johany was sent to study mathematics, and the teacher told him that it was a true science.

"For instance," she said, "if it takes one man twelve days to build a house, then twelve men can build it in one day."

Johany replied: "And 288 men will build it in an hour, 17,280 in a minute, 1,036,800 men will put it up in a second. Now, I don't believe they could build even a single brick in that time. Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in twelve days, twelve ships should be able to cross it in one day. I don't believe that either, so I'm not going to study mathematics." And Johany left the teacher studying it herself.—Exchange.

Her Word of Honor.

"Don't you love me?" "Yes, but I'm already engaged." "Then break your engagement." "Oh, Jack, that wouldn't be honorable! An engagement is a sacred thing, not lightly to be entered into or broken off. Besides—" "Well?" "Well, I'm engaged to two men, and that makes it even worse."—Boston Transcript.

Anxious to Help.

He (after the honeymoon)—Has your father said anything about helping to provide a home for us? She—Oh, yes, indeed! He said that when we had a home of our own he would buy me a cookbook and allow mother to come and teach me how to use it, even if it took a year.—New York Weekly.

"I'm a self made man, I am." "Well, there is one thing you needn't worry about." "What is that?" "Taking out a patent."

Actinic Rays.

The ultra violet ray is of all light elements the hardest on the eye. It is also called the actinic ray and is described as "like a little barbed arrow."

Both Trumpeters.

Among the quaint old epitaphs collected in England by an American with a fancy for odd verse and ancient brasses are two commemorating trumpeters. The first is often quoted: Till Angels' trumpets on the Final Day Shall Blow and Graves shall Ope Here Abram Crumppet in his Tomb doth Lay

And Waits the Call in Hope. The second is less known and, with all its quaintness, has a fine, bold ring to it. Moreover, the deceased, as a prose addition to the inscription makes clear, was a gallant soldier as well as a musician and had served through many campaigns, civil and foreign. Thus it runs:

When Gabriel Angel, shall hys Trumpett blow Uppe from the Sod commanding all be-low, Vaster than Armys when those Millions rise Arising that Summons from the Pealing Skyes, Theres One lyes Here will joyfull Rouse at last And sound a manful Echo to the Blast—John Petres, Trumpetter, who All his Dayes Blew for the Kyngs his Wars and God his Prayse.

—Youth's Companion.

Both Far Away.

A prominent Kentucky lawyer had been in Jackson during the hearing of a big land case and after the strain of several weeks in the courtroom had decided to take a trip up in the mountains and enjoy the quieting influences of the hills. He traveled the paths and parrow mountain roads till he found himself, at the end of several days' journey, about forty or fifty miles from the railroad. It was about noon, the lawyer judged, for his watch had run down and he could not be exact. But in the midst of this deep contemplation the lawyer came upon an old darky sitting upon a bowlder alongside the road. "What time have you?" he asked of the old darky. "Well, sub, boss, the old watch sars she's about ten minutes to 12," was the reply. "Is that sun time or railroad time?" again questioned the lawyer. "W'bout diff'rence 'at make? One's nigh as fur frum heah as de yudder."—Argonaut.

Scotch Breakfasts.

Dr. Redgill, in Susan Ferrier's "Destiny," dwells on Scotch breakfasts with gusto. After proclaiming that Scotland in general is "a perfect mass of rubbish" and the cookery not fit for dogs he adds: "But the breakfasts! That's what redeems the land, and every county has its own peculiar excellence. In Ayrshire you have the Lochline herring—fat, luscious and delicious, just out of the water, falling to pieces with its own richness, melting away like butter in your mouth. In Aberdeenshire you have the finnan haddock, with a flavor all its own, vastly relishing, just salt enough to be piquant without parching you up with thirst. In Perthshire there is the Tay salmon, kippered, crisp and juicy—a very magnificent morsel. In other places you have the exquisite mutton of the country made into hams of a most delicious flavor."

Judges' Gowns.

The London Law Times points out that the silk gown of the bench and bar owes its original use to its having been adopted as a form of mourning at the death of an English sovereign. On the death of Queen Mary in 1594 the present silk gown was introduced as mourning and, having been found more convenient and less troublesome than the regular dress then worn, has since been continued. The late Sir Frederick Pollock is said to have expressed an opinion in reference to the ordinary costume of the bar that the bench and bar went into mourning at the death of Queen Anne and have so remained ever since. American courts adopted the gown along with the English common law.

Bad Handwriting.

Sometimes the worst of handwriting becomes intelligible when one grasps the rules, for a man's script—particularly an author's—is frequently made difficult chiefly by his deliberate or unconscious inversion of the accepted rules of calligraphy. Henry Ward Beecher had a daughter who acted as copyist, and she read him with ease simply by remembering three principles—that in her father's manuscript no dotted letter was meant for an "i," no crossed letter stood for "t," and that no capital letter ever began a sentence.—Indianapolis News.

Where the Trouble Was.

"Mamma," said small Edmund, "I'm very sorry I ate the cake after you told me not to."

"So your conscience is troubling you, is it?" said his mother.

"I don't know," answered Edmund. "I thought it was my stomach."—Chicago News.

Chinese Junks.

Although there is no written history of the earliest bulk oil carrier, the Chinese Newchuan junk, originally built for the carriage of water in bulk and afterward used for oil, must be among the earliest examples of this class of vessel.—Exchange.

A Rebuff.

Said one Indianapolis jokesmith to another: "How's your stuff selling now? Been getting any checks lately?" "Not exactly, but I received a couple of repulses today."—Indianapolis News.

Three Vitriols.

The "three vitriols" are green vitriol (sulphate of iron), blue vitriol (sulphate of copper) and white vitriol (sulphate of zinc).

In life's small things be resolute and great.—Lowell.

Growth of Wealth.

The wealth of the world grows very slowly, and the amount of real saving is amazingly small. If, for example, the wealth of the United States when George Washington became president was equivalent to a billion dollars—and that perhaps is not a bad guess—and this amount could have steadily earned a little over 5 per cent every year since, this gain, compounded, would exceed the present estimated wealth of this country. This means that all the rest of the saving and the gains from new enterprises and a rapidly increasing population have only just about balanced the annual waste and loss. True, more than two-thirds of the wealth of nations is still the human machine and not the visible taxable property, but the fact serves to show how slight is the annual gain even in the premier get rich quick country of the world, the United States.—Carl Snyder in Collier's Weekly.

No Simple Life at Ayr.

The "simple life" finds no sympathetic atmosphere in Scotland and, above all, not in the "Auld Ayr" of Robert Burns—Auld Ayr, wham ne'er a town surpasses For honest men and bonnie lasses.

George Ferguson Munro is a newspaper person who writes articles for a Scottish newspaper. Munro wanted to live a free, untrammelled, outdoor life. He began last spring. He wandered over hill and dale, doing nothing, finding enough to eat and drink, lying on a shaded hillside reading a good book. He interfered with no one. The earth was his bed, the starry sky his roof. When it rained he went into a barn. Yet for leading this simple life he was taken by the rough hand of the law as a vagabond and sentenced by the magistrate of Ayr to three months' hard labor.—Indianapolis News.

So He Would.

If a man was only as careful of his hat and clothes at the end of a month as he is at the end of the first day he would always look well dressed.—Pittsburgh Sun.

ANSWERING LAST ROLL CALL

CAPT. HENRY NAILEIGH MINNIGH MUSTERED OUT.

He Was Captain of a Company Formed in Gettysburg and Took Part in the Battle.

Rev. Henry Nailleigh Minnigh died at his home on York street, last Friday as briefly announced in our last issue, aged 77 years, 7 months and 19 days. He was the last member of his generation living in the county. With the death of Captain Minnigh the last member of the only Gettysburg company that saw service in the Battle of Gettysburg, residing here, is removed. He is in command of Company K, 1st Pennsylvania Infantry during this battle, a military organization that made a record during the Civil War that was the pride of the residents of that day and brought an everlasting admiration to the members of the company.

Mr. Minnigh was born on April 7, 1838, near Gettysburg and spent the early years of his life on the farm of his father, later entering Gettysburg College. When he was a Junior in the school he discontinued his studies and became engaged in school teaching, which vocation he followed until the outbreak of the Civil War.

Early in 1861, when efforts were made to raise a company in Gettysburg and the county, Mr. Minnigh enlisted as fourth sergeant. The organization was known as the "Adams Infantry" and was commanded by Hon. Edward McPherson as captain; it was mustered into service at West Chester on June 11, 1861. The personnel of the command included men from Gettysburg and several county towns. When it was mustered into the service, the command became Company K of the 1st Pennsylvania Reserve Regiment.

The Company had a creditable record for the three years in which it served and during this time Mr. Minnigh arose to the position of Captain being in charge of the company at the Battle of Gettysburg. He remained its captain until they were mustered out of service.

After the war Mr. Minnigh served in the War Department at Washington and three years later returned to this county, again taking up the profession of teaching. He entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Central Pennsylvania Synod in 1871 and was engaged in this work for 35 years. On account of age and disability he was granted a retired relation with the Church. During his ministry he served fifteen pastorates, preached 6023 sermons, baptized 833, married 105 couples, made 2800 converts, and added to the church 2254 members. After his retirement he moved to Gettysburg and has resided here since.

On July 16, 1858, he was married to Miss Lisle J. Eppelman of Bendersville, who survives with one son, J. H. Minnigh, of Altoona, and one sister, Mrs. G. H. Trabant of Minneapolis.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with services in the Methodist Church by Rev. Dr. R. S. Oyler, interment in the National Cemetery.

Andrew Annan, a most prominent citizen of Emmitsburg, died at his home at that place on Monday of heart trouble, aged about 78 years. While Mr. Annan had been in poor health, yet his death was a shock to his many friends. Mr. Annan was a member of the Legislature from Frederick county, having served two terms in the House of Delegates. He always took much interest in the affairs of his home town and while of a rather retiring disposition, was well known throughout this section. He was regarded as a well-to-do man, and was the possessor of good business ability. About a year ago Mr. Annan sold his farm and also his interest in two others. Mr. Annan leaves a widow, who was Miss Lucella White, and one daughter, Miss Lucella Annan, at home. One sister, Mrs. O. A. Horner, of Emmitsburg, also survives. The funeral was held on Wednesday with interment in the Emmitsburg Cemetery.

Alban T. Myers, a former well-known resident of Adams county, died at his home in Hanover, on Wednesday, Nov. 24, aged 66 years, 5 months and 3 days. Death was the result of a paralytic stroke he received last July. Since that time Mr. Myers had been confined to his house. He was stricken while on a trip with a relative in the Pigeon Hills, July 2th. Mr. Myers was born at Round Hill, this county, a son of Hamilton and Rebecca Myers. He spent his early life in that vicinity and when a young man began the wagon making business, which he followed for eighteen years at New Chester. At the end of that time he went back to farming, living on a farm about three miles north of Gettysburg. In 1913 he retired from active life and moved to Hanover. In 1874 he was married to Miss Lizzie King, a daughter of George and Eliza King, of near Dillsburg. She survives together with the following children: Charles H., of Biglerville; Herman M., of Carlisle; Russell K. and Thos. E., of York; Roy H., of Erie, and Nelson A. Myers of Gettysburg. He also leaves these sisters: Mrs. George W. Wertz and Mrs. P. A. Fickes of Hanover; Mrs. Serigant Myers of Hampton; and Mrs. John Fickes of Ashland, Ohio. Funeral was on Saturday, Nov. 27, services by Rev. Geo. W. Nicely and Rev. S. A. Diehl, interment in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Hanover.

Edwin George Lough, a well-known citizen of Adams county, died at his home in New Oxford, Friday, Nov. 26, following a prolonged illness aged 67 years, 9 months and 9 days. He was a son of the late George and Christina Flickinger Lough, and was born near New Oxford, spending his entire life in that vicinity. For many years he has been engaged in the business of stone-cutting. In late years he has been associated with his son, Harry Lough, in the business. He is survived by his widow and four children, Harry E. Lough of New Oxford, William Lough residing in Illinois; Mrs. J. Proctor Snyder of Mt. Pleasant township, and Mrs. Harvey Brown of Hamilton township. Also by two brothers, U. A. Lough of Frederick, Md., W. A. Lough of Lintner, Ill., and one sister, Mrs. Sarah Snyder, of Hanover. Funeral was Tuesday, services by Rev. Walter E. Garrett, interment in the New Oxford Cemetery.

Moses A. Chronister, 63 years old, formerly of this county, died Nov. 26, at the home of his son, Clayton Chronister, North York. He leaves the following children: Mrs. Jay Miller of Detroit, Mich., Ervin Chronister of Freeport, Ill., Clayton Chronister and Charlotte Chronister of York. The following sisters and brothers also survive: Mrs. Oliver Gerber and Mrs. William Fisel of Hampton, Mrs. Joseph Seidensticker of Zion View, Codorus township, York county, Mrs. Jacob Nickey of Columbus, Ohio, Jere Chronister of Philadelphia, and Benjamin Chronister of York.

Daniel S. Craighead, a citizen of Carlisle for many years, died at his home last Saturday as the result of a stroke of paralysis sustained on Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Craighead was a retired farmer. He was a native of Cumberland county, a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of that county. He was educated in the public schools and Hastings Academy, Philadelphia. He is survived by four children, John S. Craighead of Carlisle, Mrs. Naomi Gilliland of Biglerville, Lemima at home, and Mrs. Richard Sharpe of Kansas City, Kan.

Mrs. P. P. Eisenhart died on Wednesday at her home in East Berlin of Bright's disease, after a long sickness, aged 69 years, 9 months and 18 days. She leaves her husband, P. P. Eisenhart, Director of the Poor of the county at the present time, and the following children: Mrs. Lillian Chronister, Charles Eisenhart, Mrs. Anna Anthony of East Berlin, and Mrs. Jennie Sheets of York. Funeral on Saturday in the Reformed Church, interment in the East Berlin Cemetery.

Mrs. Alice LeFevre, widow of Jas. LeFevre, a well-known and respected woman of Littlestown, died at her home at that place last Sunday after a lingering illness from cancer, aged (Continued on page 8).

SATURDAY, DEC. 4, 1915.

Judicial Campaign Expenses.

In the campaign for President Judge, there was spent by the two candidates over seventeen thousand dollars, and of this total $122,241 was spent in Fulton county, and $15,237 in Adams county.

Mr. D. P. McPherson's statement of expenses shows expenditures aggregating $14,237.22. Of this $10,703.13 goes to Peter Mylon, treasurer of the campaign in Fulton county, and $3,477.22 to E. P. Sachs, treasurer of campaign in this county, and that leaves $745.86 expended by the candidate.

J. L. Butt's statement of expenses shows expenditures aggregating $20,759. Of this $15,880 was spent in Fulton county, and $5,060.99 was spent in Adams county. Of the latter sum $2,355 goes to C. E. Dougherty, treasurer of the campaign in Adams county, leaving $2,705.99 expended by the candidate.

The statement of E. P. Sachs, treasurer for Mr. McPherson, shows the receipt of $947.32 and the entire sum is paid out.

The statement of C. B. Dougherty, treasurer for Mr. Butt, shows the receipt of $2,355 and the entire sum is paid out.

Paul Martin, treasurer of the Democratic County Committee, files statement showing receipts of $1,435.50 from candidates other than judicial and took credit for expenses of equal amount.

Wayne Keet, treasurer of the Republican County Committee files a statement showing receipts of $1,345 from candidates other than judicial and took credit for expenses of equal amount.

Expenses of Candidates.

All the candidates for the county offices have filed accounts of their expenses and they run from less than $50 in one instance, to $966.06. The individual amounts in the greater number are not large but the aggregate spent by the candidates on the two political tickets exclusive of the judicial candidates runs to a near sum, nearly six thousand dollars. The last day for filing the expense accounts was Dec. 2.

In the associate judgeship race the winners, W. Howard Dicks expended $195.61 and E. P. Miller 130.43. The former gave $80 to the non-partisan campaign treasurer and the latter $50. S. Gray Bigham spent less than $50 and Noah R. Beamer $68.25.

For District Attorney Raymond F. Topper spent $234.16 including an assessment of $150, and C. E. Stahlie spent $162.90 including $100 assessment.

For County Treasurer, Brady Seton spent $709.60 which included $200 assessment, and E. P. Wisotzky spent $108.45, including $200 assessment.

For County Commissioners, Harry B. Slagie spent $177.00 and Harry J. March $274.63, the assessment of $100 being included in these accounts. Edward C. Keefer spent $327.07 which included an assessment $150, and J. Carra Smith spent $135.20, including $100 assessment.

For Director of the Poor, Clinton A. Rife spent $84, including $50 assessment. Simon P. Miller's expenses were under $50, and E. H. Bender spent $84.42 including $50 assessment. S. Miley Miller, for Surveyor, spent less than $50.

A number of the candidates for the smaller offices in the borough and townships have filed affidavits that their expenses did not exceed $50. There are some who are taking the chances of the law on the expense question as follows:

Howard J. Hartman spent $966.06 in the run for Sheriff, including an assessment of $200, and John C. Bollinger $293.13, which includes an assessment of $180.00.

G. Harry Roth for Prothonotary spent $385.60, which includes a $200 assessment, and G. Allen Yohe spent $20, which includes $180 assessment.

W. D. Sheely, for Clerk of the Court spent $225.20, which includes $200 assessment, and John H. Deatrick spent less than $50.

C. W. Gardner, for Register and Recorder, spent $380.14, including $200 assessment, and W. J. Chrimer spent $256.60, including $200 assessment.

It is unlawful to administer the oath of office to any person until he has filed such an account or made such statement under oath.

No person shall enter upon the duties of his office until he has filed such an account.

No person shall receive any salary for any period prior to the filing of such an account.

Any person violating the provisions of the act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50 or more than $1,000; or by imprisonment for not less than one month or more than two years, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Early National Convention.

Democratic sentiment, from reports received by William F. McCombs, chairman of the National committee, favors an early National convention. Mr. McCombs says that from what he had gathered from the members of his committee, it was likely that the convention would be held during the first two weeks of June.

"We are the dominant party now," said the chairman, "and usually the party in power holds its convention first. I believe we are all open minded as to where the convention should be held."

He pointed out that the selection of a convention city for 1916 would not have the same political significance as in 1912 when the party went to Baltimore because it was convenient to the State from which his candidate was to come. Bids for the convention have been received from Chicago, St. Louis, Dallas and San Francisco.

Mr. McCombs expects a full meeting of the members of the National committee in Washington on December 7, when an effort will be made to decide upon the time and place for the convention.

The Congressional District composed of Adams and York counties will be entitled to two delegates to the next Democratic National convention.

Justices of the Peace.

Twenty-three justices of the peace were elected in Adams county at the last election, twenty have filed acceptances as the Act of Assembly of 1915 provides, within 30 days after the election, in order that the certification can be made to the certificate for the commissions to be issued by the Governor. The terms of the justices begin on the first Monday of January next.

The twenty justices to whom commissions will be issued with the addresses are the following:

S. A. Nagle, Abbotstown
D. P. Delap, Bendersville

Red Cross Pennant.

The states, cities, towns and villages selling the largest number of Red Cross Seals per capita will be given pennants in their respective classes by The American Red Cross and The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, as announced in a bulletin issued to-day. Last year's competition was limited to cities, towns and villages, but for the 1915 Seals Campaign pennants will be awarded to states as well.

To avoid pitting villages against large cities, they have been divided into ten classes, as follows: Population less than 600; from 600 to 1,200; from 1,200 to 2,000; thence to 3,000; thence to 25,000; thence to 50,000; thence to 150,000; thence to 1,000,000; and over 1,000,000.

A handsome silk banner in red and white will be awarded to the city, village, town or county anywhere in the United States and territories which shall make the highest score in sale per capita in its class. The populations considered are the Federal Estimates for 1915.

Robbery at Littlestown.

On last Saturday night the home of Charles Keefer, in Littlestown, was entered and the entire house ransacked from cellar to attic. $12 was taken from a pocketbook belonging to a boarder, Miss Anna Staub, but nothing else is reported missing. A silver watch, upon which was a solid gold chain was removed from a drawer, but left lying on the bureau. The pocketbook contained $12.10, but the dime was left in the purse. The robbers entered the building by forcing open a window in the front of the house, and as they passed from room to room the doors were left open. The house was entered between 9 and 9.30 p. m., while the occupants were away.

Normal Pupils.

The West Chester State Normal School numbers among the 954 pupils nine from Adams county as follows:

Baughner, Ruth M., Aspers; Geyer, Ruth E., Bendersville; Gross, Harry W., East Berlin; Jacobs, Nettie B., Abbotstown; Kaufman, Ernest M., York Springs; Kaukman, J. Raymond, York Springs; Lady, Luther M., Arenaville; Straley, Fairy E., New Oxford; Wright, Ethel, Bendersville.

Squire Hammers' Observations.

Better management and more economy is needed in our county affairs.

We are informed that the railroad officials refuse to pay the board bill of train riders at the county bastille. If such is the case why not let all train riders pass on through the town? If county must pay their boarding for the wrong done the railroad company it would be a wise policy for our officials to say pass on gentlemen. Another thing we notice the management of our courts. What was done at the November court? Practically nothing. Hundreds of witnesses from all over the county, all the jurymen, all the constables, look at the fees and the mileage up into many hundreds of dollars. Nothing done, all dismissed to come back in January next, and all this expense then doubled. Is this a saving of the taxpayers' money? Now comes another murder case, booze being the leading actor is the case. This case will consume all the county receives from the booze license. What good has the license from booze ever done the county of Adams?

Another thing we notice, which is a shame and a disgrace to our court of justice, and that is a constable making return under the influence of booze, and a witness drunk on the witness chair. If the court cannot get sober men to serve in official capacity and others as witnesses, we had better dispense with such courts. It would be a wise plan to add to each witness' oath, "have you partaken of any intoxicant within 12 hours of your taking this witness chair?"

We met four men after the November court, their pockets filled with flasks. They said Squire Hammers, hic, we were important witnesses at the court, and a man, hic, got up and said, hic, all the witnesses in all the cases before the court, are dismissed. Important witnesses, when Adams county cannot get sober men for witnesses, when man's life and property are at stake. It had better shut up shop, or drive booze from the county.

We have noticed as many as six men attending court go to a bar and each treat; that puts six drinks in before attending to the business bringing them to court. Had we an anti-treating law, each one would have taken a glass and that would have ended business at the booze bar. We simply have penned these lines to put men to thinking. The day is not far distant when booze will not receive countenance at our courts, or elsewhere.

Blood Medicine

That originated in a famous doctor's successful prescription, that is made from the purest and best ingredients, that has a record of relief and benefit believed to be unequalled the world over—such is HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

A Strange Experience

Was It Coincidence or Supernatural?

By F. A. MITCHEL.

I am a doctor. One night I was called up to attend a woman who had suddenly been taken ill. My horse had gone lame the day before, so I was obliged to walk. I passed over the mile that separated me from the patient with her husband and was well satisfied to have his company, for, though a part of the way lay through a village, even this was unlighted. Not a person did we meet on the way, and scarcely a word could I draw from my companion, who was much distressed about his wife.

I asked him what he supposed to be his wife's ailment. This time I received a response, but not one that would help me in deciding upon any treatment. He told me that her trouble was mental; that she had worried herself into a breaking down of the system. They had but one child, a daughter, who, being grown, had left them. The other not only grieved for the daughter, but had become convinced that she was in danger.

The man if his wife had any to suspect such a condition, and I told him that so far as he knew she had not. But he added that she had given evidence of seeing beyond the limits of what could be discerned by the senses; that she had known without being informed of happenings many miles distant from her. Years before a son had left them for the sea. One night the mother awakened her husband and told him that their boy was struggling in the water, then that he was dead. A month later news came that the vessel in which the young man sailed had been wrecked. All this looked to me as if I would meet a hopeless case.

And as soon as I stepped into the sickroom and saw her I knew that she was in a critical condition. But the case was not hopeless, and I worked with all the ingenuity I possessed to save her. My efforts were in vain. An hour after my arrival she died.

It is questionable if any medical man ever gets used to losing a patient. At least I never get used to it. We are intrusted with the whole responsibility of the life of the invalid. When our efforts are successful we feel a pleasurable sensation; when the patient dies on our hands we are apt to feel that had we adopted another line of treatment the result might have been different.

I left the stricken household to walk home alone. Above, the stars were shining just as calmly, as silently as before I had entered the house where lay the invalid. I wondered if a power to bridge the vast distance between them and us had been given the disembodied spirit. The planet Jupiter stood high in the east. Had the woman been borne to a vision that could take in the planet's immensity? Could she move with the instantaneous rapidity of electricity, and was she already passing the far distant Neptune on into the great vacuum that separates our sun from other fixed stars?

I was passing through the village and at this moment was before the only church it contained. Suddenly the stillness was broken by a clang. I started as if a clap of thunder instead of a village clock had struck upon my sense of hearing. Stopping, I looked up to note whence the sound came, and some moments passed before I realized that what had startled me came from the striking of a metal clapper on a metal bell. I waited for the next stroke, but it did not come. The clock had struck one hour after midnight.

I passed on, but in a moment turned for a glance at the quaint little building, deserted except when services were held in it while every other house in the village contained human beings. I could easily distinguish them in the gloom.

Is that a ray of light glimmering through the slats of the great arched window?

Impossible! The church is the last place in the village to be lighted at such an hour.

Nevertheless, there is a glimmer that can only come from an artificial light. Had I been superstitious there would have been something uncanny in seeing light in a church when all the houses where people lived were dark. But with me the discovery had a contrary effect. The loneliness by which I had been surrounded was broken. There was light, and light at that time of night meant human beings. I felt that there were persons in the church, and I felt, too, their companionship.

A curious curiosity was the chief motive power that induced me to turn, retrace my steps, go up on to the little pillared porch before the tower and listen. I thought I could hear voices within. Turning the knob, I found the door unlocked, opened it and entered a vestibule. A screen stood between me and the body of the church, and, stepping to its side, the interior was revealed to me.

At the other end of the building were three persons. One of them faced me and was evidently waiting. The other two were a man and a woman. The man was talking earnestly to the woman, evidently trying to persuade her to do something which I judged was to consent to a marriage then and there. Taking her by the hand, he attempted to draw her to stand before the altar, but she resisted.

In the church I recognized a person who had long been familiar to me, and I knew he was not a clergyman. I could not understand the situation. In the other time such marriages were used to occur in secret, but in these days we seldom hear of them. Nevertheless I suspected that these men were trying to practice a deception on this woman.

She turned away from them and started down the aisle. The man who was persuading her caught her and drew her back, pointing pleading words into her ear. This time he tried a little force, urging her up before the supposed clergyman, whom I heard say harshly:

"I am tired of this vacillation. If you are going to marry this man let us proceed with the ceremony; if not let us go."

At the same time the would be groom changed his manner from persuasion to something resembling severity, and I could see that they were trying to influence the girl to do that which she felt she ought not to do. In this way she was induced to stand before the clergyman, and he began the marriage service. But he had spoken only a few words when she broke away from them and ran like a deer down the aisle. The groom ran after her, but she had got the start of him, and the distance was short. She ran into my arms. Whether it was the shock at finding a man where she had supposed there was no one or she believed she had been lured off in her flight I know not, but she gave a shriek.

"Fear nothing," I said to her. "I am a friend, a protector."

This reassured her, and she clung to me.

The would be groom came up and, looking at me, angrily asked, "Who are you, and what are you doing here?" "Who I am," I replied, "does not matter, and what I am doing here is self evident. Just at present I am keeping this lady from an imposition. I don't know who you are, but I do know that the man who is playing parson is a livery stable keeper from whom I have occasionally hired a horse."

Before I had finished the liveryman disappeared through a door back of the pulpit. The other stood, evidently uncertain what to do. The girl, who had received from me information which astonished her, turned upon the man from whom she had escaped like a fury. He took the dressing she gave him with bowed head. She finished in tears:

"If I have done wrong it has been through love of you."

"Don't you believe that story," I said to the girl. "A man who loves a woman does not try to draw her into a mock marriage."

I saw by the man's appearance, his manner and his dress that he was what we call high bred, and it was plain that he had no intention of marrying the girl. But I saw no advantage in discussing the matter further. "Will you come with me?" I asked her.

"Or me?" said the other, with a pleading look.

There was evidence of the man's power over her, for she hesitated a moment, then put her arm through mine, and I led her away. Leaving the man in the church, we stepped out into the night.

There were the same stars in the heavens that I had seen but a few minutes before, but I looked up at them with a different feeling. Then there was mingled with the awe I felt in their solemn grandeur a sense of my human insignificance, uselessness. Now there was in me the consciousness that I had saved a fellow being from wreck.

There was another feeling. I could not get rid of an impression that the spirit of the woman I had seen pass from life to eternity might have had something to do with my having passed the church in time to save a soul, though I had failed in saving a life.

"Where shall I take you?" I asked the girl.

"Home."

Instead of going in the direction I would go she turned and walked the other way. As we proceeded she gave me her story in brief. She had been to the city studying art. There she had met the man from whom I had saved her. He had courted her, but she had suspected him. To get rid of his influence she had started for home. He had taken the same train and played his game so well that he persuaded her to go back with him as his wife. The rest I knew.

We were walking over the same road I had traversed in going to see my patient. Then I had had a companion, a man suffering from anxiety. Now my companion was a girl who had barely escaped a great evil. Some where down in me was a glimmering sensation that all these happenings were parts of a connected story. I looked up again at the stars, wondering if they knew what was but a faint impression to me.

The house where lay my last patient was on the road we were traversing. When we reached it the girl stopped.

"This is—"

I gasped.

"Home. I have come back to my father and mother."

For the first time in my life I shirked a professional duty. I should have prepared this girl for what she was to meet. I could not bring myself to do so. I took her hand, kissed it and with a "God bless you" sobbed rather than spoken, turned away.

Raising Fenceposts.

The increased demand for fenceposts has induced some far seeing farmers to raise their own posts as well as for their own use. It is a time, of course, to do this, for the period that most persons expect. A plantation of locusts can be brought to fence post size in five years from seed. The seed are first sown in a shallow water and then after soaking overnight are sown in an area in rows two feet apart. They are subsequently thinned to stand four inches apart and are mulched with straw during the first year. As they increase in size they are again thinned until they stand finally eight feet apart. From time to time as growth develops they are trimmed to prevent their becoming top heavy, and at the end of the fifth year they are ready for the market. Each tree will cut an average of three posts, and 65 trees are grown to the acre. In most localities these will sell for from 20 to 35 cents each, netting the farmer no less than $200, or $55 per acre per year.—Exchange.

The Lonely Miner's Phonograph.

What would an Alaska steamer be without its phonograph in the cabin? Not a minute is it idle. Even while the passengers are down below at meals some lingering hand reaches out for the latest record. One of the government's corps of engineering experts who was on board said: "What would the miners do without the phonograph? I find one in every cabin, no matter how remote it may be. It has helped to drive away the loneliness of camp life in the far off wilderness and is mainly responsible for the marked decrease of insanity among the miners so noticeable in recent years." The instrument on the steamer was just then melodiously grinding out "Annie Laurie." "Think," said Uncle Sam's official, "of the soothing effect of that beautiful song on a Scotchman immersed in a cabin a thousand miles from the nearest settlement."—Leslie's Weekly.

Chocolate Spanish Style.

To know the latest in the making of chocolate is to know the latest in the making of the Spanish style. One of the Spanish style makers says: "There are two kinds of chocolate. The first is the one in which the chocolate is melted. The nearest approach to this is an emulsion of double boiler. Indeed, this is a perfectly satisfactory substitute for the heavy and costly chocolate pots favored by some of the Spanish countries. The second point is that chocolate is better if not served freshly made. Chocolate and cocoa are much smoother and the flavor is much improved if they are prepared some hours before service. Cook the chocolate in the enameled ware boiler very thoroughly. Set in a cool place and let stand until required. Then heat to the boiling point and serve either with or without whipped cream."

Cartoonists and Small Boys.

"It takes a cartoonist," says a writer in Cartoons Magazine, "to understand the heart of the small boy. The cartoonists enter into his sports and share his joys and sorrow. They sit with him under the cool willows, watching the red and yellow bobber as a fat sunfish or a bullhead nibbles at the bait. They know his likes and dislikes, which are simple. In the former category fall baseball, strawberry shortcake, kites, marbles, rafts, rubber boots, dogs, circuses, swimming, picnics, buckwheat cakes. Fourth of July, Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas. In the latter may be found copper toed shoes, schoolbooks, teachers, starched collars, sulphur and molasses, practicing, washing one's neck. According to the cartoonists, the small boy lives from holiday to holiday, with a birthday in between."

The Word "Slave."

An interesting instance in history of the twisted application of the names of a people is afforded by the case of the word "slave." Now, the Slavs, tribes dwelling on the banks of the Dnieper, derived their appellation from "Slav," meaning noble or illustrious. In the days of the later Roman empire vast numbers of these Slavs were taken over by the Romans in the condition of captive servants, and in this way the name of the tribes came in time to carry with it the idea of a low state of servitude, the exact antithesis of its original meaning and one that has survived to this time.

The Gobelin Factory.

The Gobelin factory was founded in 1535 by Francis I. who scoured Europe for the artists and the makers of beautiful things who could bring lustre to the capital of France. Under his auspices came Leonardo da Vinci, and he it was who laid the foundations for the collections of statuary and paintings that have made Paris famous. The Gobelin tapestry factory was among the least of his undertakings.

The Pessimist.

"I've had an offer for my house. A man wants to pay me $5,000 more than it cost me."

"You'll accept, of course."

"Yes, but I'm afraid the man's relations will find out he's crazy before I can close the deal."—Exchange.
